I agree that standards is more powerful. It's also good to have measures as an alternative.
Thanks again!

Hi Rick/Carol:

Rather than the term "EPA's New Risk Reduction Goals" could we switch to "EPA's New Risk Reduction Standards"?

The term "goals" sounds like they are aspirational -- which is not accurate, in my opinion. I know we have to avoid the term "requirements," but Bill Jordan has told me that "standards" or "measures" are ok terms.

Hello again,

Cancellation Process Page -- Revised changes:

Please review/use these revised proposed changes in the rodenticide cancellation process demo page,
<http://intranet.epa.gov/oppirsd2/demo/opprrd1/reregistration/rodenticides/cancellation-process.html> .

Some of Rick's suggestions on the draft Q's & A's have been incorporated.

Subject: Rodenticide Web Page - Changes

---

Hi All,
To address comments from Kelly and Rick, and update language so it's consistent with current versions of other documents, I've made some changes to the rodenticides cancellation process page, and the main cover page. Comments?

Is it OK for Christine and the Web Team to incorporate these changes in the demo pages?

Thanks,
Carol

See proposed changes in the file attached.

I added "D-Con" to the title, and removed parts discussing Spectrum/Lipha/Woodstream products.

Kelly, re: the 3rd bullet and section, I'm keeping the title as is for now because it's shorter, and I wonder if it would be confusing to have both the long document and this section called Reasons and Factual Basis for... (EPA's Cancellation Action). What do others think?

Rick, Rusty has asked RD whether any new compliant products have been registered recently. We will add any new ones to the web page.

Also, I checked the Reckitt product names on our web page by looking up the product numbers in PPLS. All 12 product names on our web page match the names on the product pages in PPLS.

The product names in Table 1 of the NOIC are the same as those on our web page, except the NOIC only includes the "Con" in "D-Con" for the first product on the table. Maybe this is a way to abbreviate the other 11 product names?

Looking into the most recent label correspondence on each product page in PPLS, there are slight differences in the names of 3 products:

3282-66 -- D-Con Pellets Generation II vs. D-Con Bait Pellets in the correspondence
3282-81 -- D-Con Ready Mixed Generation II vs. D-Con Ready Mixed Baitbits in the correspondence
3282-87 -- D-Con II Ready Mix Baitbits III vs. D-Con II Ready Mixed Baitbits III in the correspondence

Should someone follow up on this?
